

Capwell-Eberhardt, Flournoy-Bentley tie at Masters golf; Karon-Owen take Flight B

Their pro partners help determine top finishes

It took every last hole to determine the top team in the RMGA's Masters Partnership Sunday---and it still wound up a full-blown deadlock.

Anthony Capwell and Rich Eberhardt took the lead Sunday when they posted a best ball 203, then awaited their pro Luke Donald's finish. Harold Flournoy and Charles Bentley were in at 204 after carding the event's low round of 62 Sunday morning, awaiting Jason Day's 4th round.

It was all decided on the last two holes at Augusta's hole no. 17, where Donald bogeyed and Day birdied to allow the Flournoy-Bentley team to deadlock their score with Capwell-Eberhardt. Both pros birdied 18 and that cinched the verdict.

Mike Karon and Steve Owen had no such problem in Flight B, where their partner, Tiger Woods, finished strongly with a 67 at Augusta. Their closest competitors, Gordon Seavey and Tom Perry, took a hit when their partner, Y.E. Yang, ended six shots back at 73 and cost them the lead.

Several others were in the running in both flights even through Amen Corner, where the leader Rory McIlroy met disaster and finished at 80, losing eight shots on the day. A South African 26-year-old darkhorse, Charl Schwartzel, (who no one picked as their pro) won the tournament at 14-under, with birds on the final four holes.

Tournament Director Jim Brown called the local tournament a huge success and Rawls' Manager for Troon Greg Winter said it was amazing to him how close most of the scores were.

Chris Ryburn-Austin Ammons, Frank Morrison-Dave Pritchett and Randy Stumbo-Ross Valigura tied for third in Flight A. Trey Strange-Bill Pevehouse and Jerry Smith-Ken Beebe tied for third in Flight B.

Next on RMGA's schedule: Annual Guys-Gals tourney

Coming up next on RMGA's tournament list is the annual Guys-Gals event Saturday and Sunday, April 30-May 1.

Director Jim Brown said the event will be a guy-gal scramble format as in the past.

Details will be announced in a forthcoming flyer.

Masters prize money list will be coming tomorrow

All gift certificates plus all other prizes will be announced Tuesday by Jim Brown via email.
